[Lewiston (Me.) Journal.] Several years ago four ladies dd Danville at the house of Mrs. John Goss, grandmother of John Goss, of Lew iston. The visiting ladies were Catherine Dyer, Catherine Goss, and "Aunt" Ham. The four ladies found that at that time they had fifty children still living. Mrs. John Goss died at the age of eighty-one years. Mrs. Ham died at the age of ninety-three, and Mrs. Dyer at the age of ninety-four, while Mrs. Catherine, mothe of John Goss at the age of ninety year of John Goss, at the age of ninety years, still lives with her children in Gorham. [Rochester Express.] Several weeks ago, while making obserations, Professor Swift detected some thing of uncommon appearance in the same field with Eta Eridani. He had half an hour of clear sky in which to view it, when it clouded up and prevented further observations. He has no doubt that it was a comet, and says it was bright for first appearance. He was unable the short time he watched it to detect any motion. What the Professor lacked was an equatorial telescope and a chart of all nebula. If he had had these at hand he could easily have determined the exact position of the comet, and by tele graph informed some astronomers of its appearance where there was a clear sky As it was, he could not do this, and the heavens remained cloudy for several weeks, after which he was unable to find the stranger.
